Art Unit: 1761

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 23-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Irie et al (Japanese patent publication 8-154589, pages 4-5).

Irie et al discloses a granular substance for use in chewing gum. The substance is composed of a flavor, a coloring agent and Palatinit (isomalt) granules having a 10-50 mesh size. Applicant's method limitations in claims 23 and 25-27 are entitled to no patentable weight in applicant's product claims.

4. Claims 23-27 and 30 are also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Jean (French patent 2,748,902 (page 2 and claim 1))

Jean discloses isomalt crystals of about 1 mm in diameter, which are added to bubble gum to provide a crunchy effect. Also, see the last sentence in paragraph no. 3 above.

5. Claim 31 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jean.

Art Unit: 1761

Finding the optimum mesh size of the isomalt would require nothing more than routine experimentation by one reasonably skilled in this art as long as the isomalt provides a crunchy effect to the gum.

6. Claims 32- 40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Irie et al in view of Forkner.

It would have been obvious to prepare the Palatinit granules in Irie et al by heating the Palatinit, cooling and then granulating since it is conventional to prepare sugar containing granules by such a procedure, as evidenced by Forkner (col. 13, lines 30-50). Finding the optimum heating temperature (claims 32 and 34-36) would require nothing more than routine experimentation by one reasonably skilled in this art.

7. Claims 32-36, 39 and 40 are also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jean in view of Forkner.

Forkner is applied as in paragraph no. 6 above.

8. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 23-40 submitted August 9, 2004 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

9. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Arthur L. Corbin whose telephone number is (571) 272-1399. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday - Friday from 10:30 am to 8:00 pm.
